ACLU of Michigan Legislative Docket: Poverty

The ACLU maintains a presence in Lansing that enables us to pass policies that expand civil liberties or prevent the passage of policies that are hostile to civil liberties. Through traditional lobbying techniques lobbying, advocacy, and advocacy the legislative program seeks to advance and protect our civil liberties.

The ACLU of Michigan's legislative program works on a breadth of issues. To give you an idea of what we've been up to, we have provided a brief summary, our position on the issue and where the bill is currently situation in the legislative process. We have stated our position on each bill using brief descriptors:

- Actively Support/ Oppose: The ACLU considers this bill high priority and has taken direct action to support or opposing the bill. The bill has, more likely than not, seen movement in the Legislature during the current session.
- Support/Oppose: Based on its own policies, the ACLU supports or opposes the bill but has not taken an affirmative action OR the legislation has not moved through the legislature and therefore the ACLU has not needed to take direct action at this point.
- Remain Neutral: As written, the bill does include some civil liberties issues but the ACLU has taken no direct action to support or oppose the legislation.

Suspicion Based Drug Testing

House Bill 4118

Sponsor: Rep. Jeff Farrington (R-Utica)

ACLU Position: Oppose

Status: Passed by the House and Senate, Amended and Passed by House, Awaiting final vote by Senate

Under the law, applicants and recipients for family assistance would have to submit to substance abuse screenings that determines if there is suspicion to warrant a substance abuse test. If an applicant refuses to take a substance abuse test, he or she becomes ineligible for family assistance for at least six months. The cost of the substance abuse is waived only for those participants who test negative.

Blight Penalties

Senate Bill 35 and Senate Bill 38 and Senate Bill 39

Sponsor: Sen. Virgil Smith (D-Detroit), Sen. Rick Jones (R-Grand Ledge), Sen. Tupac Hunter (D-Detroit)

ACLU Position: Neutral after amendments made

Status: Signed into law 12/17/13 as Public Act 188 of 2013 and Public Act 191 of 2013 and Public Act

192 of 2013

These laws allow certain cities to establish additional civil penalties that can be imposed on a person who has committed a blight violation and fails to pay the resulting fine. Originally these bills provided no mechanism for review to ensure that a person facing blight violations had the ability to pay their fines. It would have a disproportionate and harsher impact on the indigent. Furthermore, this law exempts lending institutions that hold foreclosed property. Many of the blight problems cities face are the result of banks failing to maintain foreclosed, empty homes. The ACLU held that it was unfair to punish poor people who cannot afford to keep up their homes while allowing banks to let homes deteriorate. We were successful at getting the original legislation amended with proper protections for the indigent, which cleared the legislation of any civil liberties concerns and thus, allowing us to go neutral.

Senate Bill 35

This law authorizes the use of penalties against property owners who fail to pay fines imposed by committees authorized to enforce blight violations. There is an exemption for the primary property of individuals.

Senate Bill 38

This law allows local governments to garnish the wages of property owners who fail to pay for blight violations. There is an exemption for the primary property of individuals.

Senate Bill 39

This law allows local governments to place liens on property owned by a person who fails to pay for blight violations. There is an exemption for the primary property of individuals.
